

Assignment: Distance between two points.

Write a program that calculates the shortest (straight-line) distance between two points on an x-y plane. This functions very similar to the Pythagorean triples program, but in reverse, and your final distance will need to be a float rather than an int value.